M.E.Ch.A student moved out of ICU

CHRISTINE NEILL
Pacifcan News Editor

Angelica Nunez, who was seriously injured in an auto accident earlier this month, has been moved out of the intensive care unit. "She still remains in serious condition so she can't be moved to a closer hospital," said Allison Dumas, co-advisor of M.E.Ch.A., the group of which Nunez is president. Dumas said she had spoken to Nunez on Monday and said that she was in a lot of pain. She also said that Nunez had had surgery on both of her legs because of the extensive damage. Nunez was airlifted to Fresno Community Hospital when the car in which she was traveling crashed on Interstate 5 near Fresno on April 9. She and six other Pacific students were en route to UCLA to attend the 1998 National M.E.Ch.A. conference at the time of the accident. Movimiento Estudiantil Chicano de Aztlan is a political, educational and community-based student organization. Because Nunez has no insurance, fundraising efforts have begun to help pay for her medical expenses. For more information on how to help, contact Allison Dumas at 946-2439 or Carmelita Tolentino at 943-2276.

Microsoft, Hughes out of tech deal

SEKHAR PADMANABHAN
State Horner
(Sacramento State)

Two of four high-tech giants are no longer partners in the unprecedented, $365 million deal to upgrade the California State University system's technological infrastructure. Microsoft and Hughes will not be partners in the California Education Technology Initiative because financial arrangements could not be worked out, CSU Chancellor Charles Reed said last week.

Reed confirmed what many student and faculty groups had been predicting for months: that Microsoft Corp., under investigation by the U.S. Department of Justice for a l l e g e d antitrust violations, would either pull — or be kicked — out.

However, CSU spokesman Ken Swisher denied Microsoft's current image problem as a reason for Microsoft's removal.

"There were different factors," Swisher said. Swisher asserted CSU is still working with Microsoft on an "appropriate" relationship, one "that we can agree on and that works for both parties."

"We will continue to work together on other projects, and remain committed to providing the best technology and thinking," said Microsoft spokeswoman Joelle McGinnis. Officials from Hughes could not be reached for comment.

Reed said, "If necessary, we may seek new partners (that) are interested in joining this effort..." This is the fourth delay for CETI since December. It may not be finished until "well into the next academic year," according to Reed.

He said from now on CETI must be carefully negotiated in the best academic and financial interests of the university system and its faculty, staff and students.

With the much-investigated Microsoft and the lower-profile Hughes out, only Fujitsu and the project's major backer, GTE, remain.

CETI was criticized by faculty who feared corporate control in the classroom, though CSU officials denied this.

CSU is still working with Microsoft on an "appropriate" relationship, one "that we can agree on and that works for both parties."

- Ken Swisher
CSU Spokesman

Several student groups drafted resolutions against CETI. Six CSU academic senates did the same.

But CSU officials see CETI as the only way the university can move its technology into the 21st century.

"The state is unable to provide the $300 million needed to build this infrastructure. (CETI) may well serve as a public-private model for universities around the country," Reed said.

Pacific hosts annual concrete canoe competition

Christine Neill
Pacifcan News Editor

University of the Pacific was one of ten schools to compete in the 1998 Mid-Pacific Regional Conference this past weekend which involved the concrete canoe competition.

Sacramento State emerged as winner of the competition while Pacific placed sixth.

"This is our best finish in five years," said engineering professor Gary Litton.

"For a small school we did really well in the competition," said Paul Schneider, concrete canoe chairman. Schneider is also a first-year senior in the engineering program.

Berkely, Davis, Fresno State and Sacramento State were among the schools that competed.

Each school that does the project estimates what the cost would be if they were professional engineers being hired to do an actual job.

The estimate for Pacific was $22,000. The actual cost of the canoe was about $700, according to Schneider.

"This is probably the best canoe that we have entered in the competition," Schneider said.

Pacific's canoe weighed about 120 pounds.

It competed in the men's and women's 100 meter and the men's and women's 600 meter slalom.

"This is the lightest and strongest one we've Pacific's concrete canoe helped the Tigers to place sixth at the Mid-Pacific Regional Conference had," he said.

Sac State's estimate was over $72,000. This was such a large estimate because of all the time and people they have working on the project.

An entire class is designated for the project, with students spending several hours exclusively for rowing.

At Pacific only about five or six students were involved in the entire project.

"At other schools they probably have about 40 to 60 students working on the canoe," Schneider said.

"We have quite a few less than that here."

This is the first time in 12 years that the competition was held on the Stockton campus.

The competition rotates from school to school.

The race was held at Lodi Lake in Lodi.

Ken Day named new COP associate dean

BRITTONY BORGES
Pacifcan Guest Writer

Kenneth Day has accepted the position of associate dean for the College of the Pacific.

Day, a professor in the Communication department, will replace Jon Schamber beginning in the Fall 1998 semester.

Besides being a communication professor, Day has also served as chair of the department for six years and was chair of the COP Council.

"I am looking forward to this position for the next three years," Day said.

"Jon (Schamber) did a great job," he said.

Schamber is leaving the position because it is a three-year appointment.

Shamber had served four years because he was asked to do an extra year beyond his regular term.

As associate dean, Day will be responsible for managing the budget, increasing COP admissions, working with alumni and assisting the Dean.

He will, however, continue to conduct research within his field.

Currently, he and communication professor Qingwen Dong are researching the affect of U.S. mass media on college students in China.

Day earned a bachelor of arts degree in Education from Indiana University.

He holds masters degrees in Computer Science and Telecommunication and a doctorate in Mass Communication.

"I am looking forward to this position for the next three years,"

Film professor edits book

THE PACIFICAN

University of the Pacific English and film studies professor Diane Borden has edited the recently-published Bertolucci's The Last Emperor: Multiple Takes.

The anthology--also edited by Bruce Sklarew, Bonnie Kaufman and Ellen Spitz--uses a psychoanalytic approach to examine Italian film director Bernardo Bertolucci's epic 1988 film, "The Last Emperor," about China's last reigning monarch.

Essays by the editors and others weave psychological, political and cinematic themes through four parts: takes, filmcraft, psychoanalysis, film scholarship and cultural history.

The book features a forward by the filmmaker.

Borden's contribution is "Fabric as Fetish."

"All of the essays serve to illuminate this complex film and renew excitement about the possibilities of interdisciplinary criticism in film studies," Borden said.

Copies of the book will be sold in the UOP bookstore and are available through the publisher, Wayne State University press in Detroit.

Fewer students finish on time

BY JANEL BURCHETT
Daily Illini (U. Illinois)

Not sure if you'll graduate on time? Don't fret--you're not alone.

According to The American College Testing program (ACT), there is an all-time low in the number of students who graduate from college within five years.

A nationwide study showed that 52.8 percent of students earn a bachelor's degree within five years, according to ACT. This is nearly a five percent decrease since 1983, when the study began.

Despite the statistics, the University of the Pacific offers its full-time students a guarantee that they will finish their bachelor's degree in four years if they meet university requirements.

The University of Illinois is no different. According to the College Guide in the Sept. 8, 1997 issue of U.S. News & World Report, the graduation rate for the University was 78 percent in 1996, with a predicted graduation rate of 66 percent.

At the time, the University was ranked 12th in graduation rates in the listing of U.S. News & World Report's Top 25 public national universities.

The universities with the highest graduation rates were Harvard, Princeton and Stanford, with graduation rates of 97 percent, 94 percent and 94 percent, respectively.

According to Ira Langston, assistant vice principal of academic affairs, the percentage of students who graduate from the University of Illinois in four years was 48.9 percent in 1992, while the percent of students who graduated in five years was 68.8 percent.

In 1989, 80.9 percent of students graduated in seven years, Langston said.

The reasons for the large number of students who do not graduate in four years vary. Langston said some of those reasons might include students who have multiple majors. Students who change majors or drop out and then return to the University of Illinois might also contribute to this statistic.

A nationwide study showed that 52.8 percent of students earn a bachelor's degree within five years, according to ACT.

Differences between full-time and part-time students were also listed as possible explanations of the figure. Kelley Hayden, director of communications for ACT, said in a press release that many reasons contribute to students attending colleges for more than four years.

Some of these reasons, Kelley said, are an increase in the number of part-time students and students who attend college straight from high school, scheduling difficulty and the availability of courses.

Those reasons seem to coincide with opinions of University of Illinois students. Alan Harwood, a freshman in engineering, said he will probably not graduate in four years. "The requirements are too high for the college I'm in," Harwood said.

Katherine Anderson, junior in LAS, said that taking summer school classes and correspondence courses will enable her to graduate in four years. Anderson said she understands the difficulty of not being able to graduate in four years, however.

"You can't always get the classes you need. Many students don't understand the urgency of getting those classes," Anderson said. "There is also a lot to do on this campus."

Quote of the Week

"Nothing hurts more than the loss of money."

-Livy, History of Rome

Should all UOP students pay for a yearbook?

Most students here at UOP likely had a yearbook in high school. Many of these students may even occasionally flip through their old yearbook today. The issue that students of UOP may have to vote on next year is whether or not they will pay an additional $30 on their ASUOP fee for a yearbook?

If the ASUOP fee is raised to cover a yearbook, it means every student will be paying for that yearbook, even though some students may not desire a yearbook. Should this increase manage to get passed, students will have relatively little choice in the matter. This is why students must think this out ahead of time and vote so that their opinion may be heard on this issue. If students fail to vote, then they are resigning themselves to the decisions of others.

One problem with funding the yearbook on a voluntary basis is that it forces the yearbook staff to guess about the demand there will be for yearbooks annually. If the staff gets less demand than expected, the yearbook will likely go into debt. If the yearbook goes into debt, it will disappear once again.

The last time a yearbook was published on campus was 1993. If the yearbook is funded through the ASUOP fee, then it will cost around $30 per yearbook. If, on the other hand, the yearbook is funded on a voluntary basis, it will cost students more depending on how many students buy the yearbook. The cost for a yearbook on a voluntary basis could be as high as $60 or more. With the apparent apathy and lack of spirit on this campus, it is very likely that the price for a yearbook would be in the $60 range. Even so, does the additional cost to students who want a yearbook give ASUOP the right to force students who don't to pay for a yearbook?

Before ASUOP goes further with the proposed fee, there will be extensive polling. ASUOP will target mainly freshmen and sophomores, since the earliest a yearbook could come about is the 1999-2000 school year. ASUOP also plans on polling the incoming students in summer orientation, as well as current students. The committee hopes to get an idea of how the entire student body will feel about the fee.

Many students paid $50 to $60 for a yearbook in high school. Why should they object to paying $30 for a yearbook here in college? One reason would be that students were not paying $25,000 a year to attend high school. Another reason students may object to a fee is that many of students may not want to pay the fee or even have the yearbook.

If this fee is put to a student vote, it should not be a simple majority which decides the result. This is a large hike in an already large fee, and a simple majority means many students could possibly have voted against the fee and still be forced to pay. This will not help student attitudes toward ASUOP. If anything, it should be a two thirds vote that decides this issue.

Leaving all arguments aside, it is up to students to decide this matter. If students do not wish to pay this fee, then these same students must be sure to vote ASUOP of their disagreement. This fee will not be enacted without student approval. If, on the other hand, students do approve the fee, the Board of Regents will review the arguments for and against the fee. If the Board of Regents decides the fee is worthwhile, the fee will be enacted and we will have a UOP yearbook, like it or not.

Barbara Boxer will soon be forced to face her hypocrisy

ERIC DEWEES
Managing Editor

Remember Anita Hill's sexual harassment allegations against Clarence Thomas, and Boxer with six other congresswomen marching over to a closed 1991 Senate hearing to protest Hill's treatment by the committee? According to political consultant Dan Schnur, "More than any other politician in America, she rode Anita Hill to victory in 1992." She claimed that another woman was needed in the Senate to guarantee other women were treated fairly.

Perhaps you'll remember the more recent resignation of Bob Packwood in 1995 and the resulting media spotlight on Senator Boxer, as she was the first to ask for his resignation? As early as 1993, she pressed unrelentingly for the resignation after numerous allegations of sexual harassment. She had plenty of anti-harassment rhetoric to spout before, during and after his resignation.

Senator Boxer, remarking on the Packwood incident told the San Francisco Chronicle, "I am glad I called attention to the case, and the rest of it was common sense. I do believe that if I hadn't called attention to it, it might have been swept under the rug. Once the American public looked at it, they demanded justice."

Today, Boxer herself has a broom in hand, and is violently sweeping sexual harassment cases under the rug.

Combative toward the suggestion that her response to the Paula Jones case has been guided by partisanship, Senator Boxer said of Clinton, "This is a man who has been hounded."

Boxer, whose daughter is married to Hillary Clinton's brother, has done all she can to undermine the Paula Jones case, and has remained relatively quiet about the plethora of other allegations against Clinton.

This hypocrisy is sure to land squarely on her shoulders once the senatorial race gets underway. Boxer's boisterous and outspoken approach toward sexual harassment in the past, especially in the 1992 election, will not be seen again in 1998. Rather, look to see her appealing both to liberals and moderates by advocating increased gun control and improved education through spending, while taking responsibility for California's strong economy and a plan to encourage tax cuts. She will likely attempt to earn some of Clinton's popularity points, and do her best to play down and belie the sexual harassment allegations against Clinton.

Senator Boxer would be the first to scream impeachment if these allegations were against a Republican president. Not only is she playing extremely partisan politics, but she's protecting family interests as well. Have women's interests, particularly those regarding sexual harassment issues, been represented as she promised in 1992?

As Tennessee Williams wrote, "The only thing worse than a liar is a liar that's also a hypocrite!"

Virginia execution of murderer scheduled to continue

SCOTT SWITZER
Opinion Editor

Angel Francisco Breard, a Paraguayan man residing within the United States, will be executed in Virginia. Breard was convicted of murdering his neighbor, Ruth Dickie, in an attempted rape. He was later arrested for trying to rape another Virginia woman and became a suspect in the Dickie case.

It seems that the Paraguayan consulate was not informed of the charges against Breard before his trial. Because of this, pressure has been put on the governor of Virginia to stay the execution. The governor saw no reason to stay the execution, and the Supreme Court has upheld the execution. Angel Breard will be executed by lethal injection in Virginia.

Why is it that whenever a foreign man or woman commits a crime, they expect to be returned to their homeland rather than face trial for their crimes in the US? Every time this occurs, the US. faces international pressure to comply. It is about time that we see someone guilty of a crime face punishment.

I am not saying that persons from other countries should face trial or punishment for every little crime; for they may not be aware of all of our laws. I am also not trying to spark anti-American sentiment. I am just saying that when someone is guilty of a serious crime such as murder or rape, they should not be allowed to leave this country unpunished.

This argument should also apply both ways. I believe that any American visiting another country should be subject to all of that country's laws. If you will remember a few years back, a young man was to be caned for graffiti. I was in agreement with the punishment. He did commit the crime, and he paid the penalty under that country's law. There is obviously a big difference between graffiti and murder, but you see the comparison.

The bottom line is this: If you commit a crime, you should be punished. Angel Breard committed murder, and he will be executed for that. The execution should not become a diplomatic or a bureaucratic issue. Breard was found guilty in a fair trial, and he even rejected a plea bargain that would have spared his life. I think that he may have been counting on being saved by bureaucrats. Breard will get what he deserves, as anyone who commits a crime should.

Activities for college students lacking in Stockton

LAUREN ARONSON
Pacifcan Guest Writer

When I hear the word Stockton many thoughts come into my head. College town is not one of them. Normally, when a college is located in the middle of a city, the city is pretty accommodating to the students. Not in Stockton. Never in my life have I seen such a dead city.

One would think that if the city doesn't offer activities for the students, the school will. I pay enough money to attend school here that requesting a few activities be provided for entertainment is reasonable. I am not talking about health and job fairs, or music during Pacific Hour. I am talking full-scale concerts, movies (we do have a movie theater right in the McCaffery Center), food, you get my drift.

It's no wonder everyone goes home for the weekend. Who wants to go to a school where nobody wants to stay? I don't have the chance to go home when I feel like it. I am running out of ideas for things to do. Last weekend I went to see a movie with my boyfriend and much to my surprise the latest movie started at 10 pm. At home, I can see a movie at midnight if I so desire, but not in Stockton. What's a girl to do?

My best friend attends Stanford. Granted Stanford probably has twice as many students as UOP, but you should see their student union. They have a Mexican food restaurant, a grocery store, a coffeehouse and more. On Sunday nights they actually use their movie theater. They aren't first run movies, but who wouldn't love to see Austin Powers on the big screen again?

When I went to visit her, I was in heaven. When we came back from partying, we ordered a pizza and it was delivered straight to the room at 2 am. I would love to be able to go to the Summit when I am up late studying, or even venture off to Tiger Yogurt after 11 p.m. I understand that high school students work there, but I also know many college students who need a job. Is it too much to ask for a cup of yogurt at midnight? I think not.

People always tell me that they are plenty of things to do around UOP. Clubs in Modesto, sight seeing in San Francisco, snowboarding in Lake Tahoe. That's great if you have a car. It is also fine if reasonable public transportation is provided, which excludes Stockton. Both situations are problems for me. Looks like Lauren is stuck in Stockton.

I honestly don't know what I can do at this point. I keep hearing that the McCaffery Center will be revamped, that our student fees are going to be increased, but is there anything to come from this talk? I know that one of the ASUOP candidates has been trying to get concerts and activities going on campus to increase student involvement.

I would love to see more people stay on campus on the weekends. I wouldn't mind going to see a movie on campus on Sunday nights. I would enjoy sitting with a friend and drinking coffee past 11 p.m. Who knows? Maybe by the time I graduate from UOP, I will get to do all of this. I just think that UOP helps the Stockton community financially and through community involvement programs. Isn't it about time Stockton helped UOP?

Is anyone else getting sick of having their school schedule screwed up by some administrator who does not remember what it is like to be a student? Every semester, we have last minute changes. This year we lost "dead week." Now finals week has been rearranged so that it starts on a Thursday without giving us a weekend to relax and prepare. Many of us will have classes Monday and Tuesday of finals week followed by finals on Thursday and Friday.

It is unfair to expect us to prepare for a final in one day. Now we have no alternative.

Many students are in situations similar to my own. I work three jobs in addition to taking a full class load. I simply will not have time to study before Wednesday night. Looking at my schedule shows that I will have from 5:00 p.m. Wednesday night until 8:00 a.m. Thursday morning to study for my first final. 15 hours assuming I don't bother to eat or sleep.

The reason commonly given for this type of modification to our schedules is to make our professors' lives easier. The (somewhat understandable) reasoning behind elimination of "dead week" is so that professors do not have to write two versions of the final. Don't get me wrong, our professors are generally overworked and underpaid, but if the best reason anybody can come up with for the finals week schedule change is so that some professors can take their summer breaks three days early then someone needs to remind them what the purpose of an educational institution is.

There is a quote by John Ciardi that says, "A university is what a college becomes when the faculty loses interest in students." I believe our faculty is interested in our general well being, but somewhere in the chain of administration, professors, and staff there is a weak link. UOP as a whole seems to suffer an inability to make sensible decisions. Townhouse residents receive letters warning us not to make holes in the walls in order to avoid disturbing the asbestos, but no mention of when it would actually be fixed. Even simple concepts like giving students a mere 48 hours to prepare for finals are not taken into account when setting the semester's schedule. Maybe all the confusion is in the name of preparation for real life, but I thought I had a little more time before I had to deal with that.

New Finals Plan: A Dreadful Schedule or Relieving Change

Think back for a moment to finals last year. You were probably really stressed and had one grueling final after another. By the end of the week you were ready to kill someone and you still didn't know if you had passed.

We have all been through this scenario but now, with a new schedule, things may not be so bad. Many people are upset at the 'change' of finals schedule this year but if you really consider the factors, it isn't that bad.

Normally finals week begins on a Monday and runs through Friday, and seniors took their finals early. This year, seniors will take their finals with everyone else, and finals week will be split between Thursday of the first week and Wednesday of the second. Many schools run their finals this way, and it apparently works well.

One complaint the seniors have is that there is no time between finals and graduation. Logistically, seniors will have more time to prepare for finals and more time to bring up grades if necessary. There will still be three days before graduation this year, and by eliminating the hassle of a second final for professors, grades may come in sooner. It also eliminates the possible bias that may exist between the finals the professors offer to seniors and those they offer to the rest of the class.

Examining the basic scheduling difference of finals week this year, what are we really losing by splitting up the schedule? Classes in the beginning of that last week before finals will probably be held for review and preparation and there will still be two days for students to prepare for their first finals.

Having a weekend in-between the whole week of finals is a bonus. Normally, we have one final right after another and this way the weekend provides some down time to relax or study before jumping back into another test. With finals ending mid-week it also gives students two working days to take care of last minute business.

If you really think about it the new finals schedule will help everyone. Professors will have less hassle in developing and grading finals, and students will get a break in their 'hell' week. It is a change, and we all must adjust, but once we are used to it I think we will find that the benefits outweigh the losses. There is also the fact that we really don't have a choice!

Chi Alpha: Reaching out and believing in God

Alex Zamansky
Metro Editor

College for almost every student can be a stressful time. With hours of studying, working a job, and trying to maintain enough sleep and healthy eating, one often does not get a chance to take a moment to relax. Some are able to relax through watching television or meditating. But if you want to incorporate relaxation with a little faith, then perhaps the place to go is Chi Alpha.

Chi Alpha is a religious organization that caters to "anybody interested in hearing about God." President Brian Thomas says that the purpose of Chi Alpha is to be able to "reach out to the campus in educating people about God, but to also support other beliefs shared on campus pertaining to God."

Led by faculty advisor Paul T. Fogle, a professor of speech therapy, Chi Alpha stands out from the rest of the clubs here on campus because the members "care about people and are willing to take time to enhance the lives of others." Chi Alpha engages in many events over the course of a year. For example, Chi Alpha held a Christmas Party, and week-long retreat in Southern California earlier this year. They are having a retreat again in May near Chico. At the end of the year, there will be the annual End of the Year Bash held here on campus.

Chi Alpha offers a "very friendly atmosphere where you can relax" in-between studies and school. Meetings consist of worship time and a message from the Chi Alpha leaders. Chi Alpha meets every Friday at 8pm in the Z-Building. There are no dues, and there are no requirements for joining or attending Chi Alpha meetings. If you are interested in attending a "relaxed and laid-back" meeting where you can pray or just "forget" for awhile, then check out Chi Alpha.

Archania

At last, summer weather is finally visiting the UOP campus! For Archania, that means it's time to pull out the volley balls, slip 'n' slides, and water balloons (...watch out Omega Phi!).

Last Thursday's Faculty Dress Dinner was a success in every sense of the word. We enjoyed a super dinner with UOP faculty, and had a great time sitting down with our professors and various instructors in a more personable setting. The event also gave us reason to do a pretty thorough Spring-Cleaning, so now Archania looks in tip-top shape. Archania has also moved onto its next charitable project with a local Stockton high school student, Lacey. Lacey is a Junior at Lincoln High School, and has been selected by the Ambassador's Program to represent California during an almost one month long exchange program next summer. If Lacey can raise enough cash by the end of next month, the Ambassador's Program will bring her to New Zealand and Australia for the opportunity of a lifetime. Archania is hoping to raise a little money in order to help her out with her program expenses. While we have definitely been pinching pennies this semester, we hope we can contribute somewhat to this more-than-worthy cause. And last but certainly not least, Alpha Kappa Phi's Fireman's Fling is the day after tomorrow! Fling is arguably our favorite party out of all spring semester, and I can assure you, all of us are looking forward to Saturday!

During the week of April 6th, the Greek community participated in the Week of Give. Give is an acronym for Greeks Interacting Voluntarily Everyday. Throughout the week, Greek organizations volunteered in the community. Sorority and fraternities are paired up and decide what part of the community would benefit most from their services.

Delta Gamma and Archania put on an Easter party for the children of the Mary Graham Children's Home. The party was hosted at the Archania Fraternity House. The children dyed 125 eggs and then they went on an Easter egg hunt. A barbecue with hot dogs, hamburgers, soda, and cookies was also provided for the children.

Approximately 20 kids, ages 6 to 15, participated in the Easter party. Delta Gamma's Lauren Parsons said, "As Greeks we feel it is not only important to

Alpha Phi and Pi Kappa Alpha volunteered by doing a graffiti clean-up in the Stockton north area off March Lane. They cleaned up trash and painted over the graffiti. Bee Mazzone, the President of Alpha Phi, said, "it was a lot of fun."

Kappa Alpha Theta, Phi Delta Theta, and Omega Phi Alpha volunteered at the Saint Mary's Soup Kitchen. They made sandwiches during the morning shift and washed dishes in the afternoon shift. Jeff Russell, the President of Omega Phi Alpha said he would "definitely go back and help out again."

Delta Delta Delta and Alpha Kappa Lambda participated in a tutoring program at the Anderson Y. They tutored high school and junior high students. Jerome Barsock, from Alpha Kappa Lambda said, "that he enjoyed tutoring the students and would be sure go back again."

Stockton's policy on events

DONNA BROWN
Pacifica Guest Writer

1. Many students here remember the days when we could go off campus in high school for lunch. There seems to be a growing closed-campus policy growing here in the local area. What is your opinion on this?

The Stockton City Council has supported the closed campus concept for two reasons. First, it is important to keep students in class so that they may learn and succeed in school. Too often, students do not return to class so that they may learn and succeed in school. This interferes with their education and sometimes results in their becoming involved in delinquent behavior. This leads to the second reason for support of the closed campus concept. Those students who are not in school are sometimes involved in activities which have a negative effect in the community. These may be as serious as daytime burglary, car thefts, drug sales, etc. The other cities which have emphasized keeping truants in school have experienced a reduction of 50% in the rates of crime mentioned above. A related matter is the safety of the students. We would like to restrict the coming and going on campus so that the students will be safer. This will keep out non-students who are a threat and protect those who have to be in class.

2. What is needed and who should be contacted to be able to hold an event (e.g. the Asparagus Festival) here in Stockton?

ASSEMBLAGE PERMIT: Required for any parade, sidewalk march, walk, run or other assemblage when vehicular or pedestrian traffic is affected. There is no fee unless police services are required. Assemblage Permit applications are available from and processed by the Police Department Traffic Section.

DANCE PERMIT: Required for public dances. Applications are available from the Finance Department and processed by the Police Department Vice Unit. Fees apply.

SPECIFIC EVENTS PERMIT: Required for most street closures, are available from the Public Works Department, Traffic Engineering Section. Examples include street fairs and block parties. Fees apply.

USE OF CITY PROPERTY (PARK PERMIT): Required for organized functions at city parks. Applications available from Parks and Recreation Department. Fees apply.

Summer teaching for UOP students

UOP students are invited to share their knowledge and enthusiasm with kids this summer by teaching a non-credit class through Lifelong Learning.

Some of the classes offered last summer included "Nature Drawing," "Face Painting," "Creative Writing," and "Creative Cooking." Two classes that are very popular with Stockton teens (and their parents) are "Basic Spanish for Kids" and "Math for Junior High/High School Students." UOP grad Amy Quintanal, who taught Spanish and math for two summers, said, "It's a blast! Here's your chance to turn a boring summer experience into something fun, while still teaching kids what they need to learn! And you get paid!"

Hours for summer Lifelong Learning classes are flexible. For example, "Basic Spanish" met over four consecutive days, two hours a day. Two sessions were offered. "Nature Drawing" met Tuesdays and Thursday for three weeks, from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. The teacher's salary is dependent on enrollment, so it is important to consider the needs and schedule of your target audience as you develop a class. In other words, parents need to find something interesting for their children to do this summer, and the kids want to have fun! Combine the two needs, and you may be successful.

If you have an interest or skill you'd like to share with children or teens this summer and appropriate experience, call Lifelong Learning at (209) 946-2424. We'll help you develop and market your class, schedule a classroom (or a lawn) where you'll teach, and the rest is up to you!

Staying healthy

What is wellness? It's more than just not being sick — it is a positive state of health. Wellness means taking responsibility for your own health by: learning how to stay healthy, practicing good health habits and giving up harmful ones, and responding to your body's warning signs before so thing serious happen. Wellness involves the health of the whole person. The body must be kept strong, fit and well nourished, so it is able to resist disease and overcome injury. The mind and spirit are important, too. A positive attitude helps a person combat stress and tension.

Why should you learn about wellness? So you enjoy life to the fullest! When you are well you feel good, and you have more energy and endurance. Not to mention you spend less time feeling tired or ill. You tend to sleep better and feel calmer with more confidence. Most importantly, you look good. Your good health shows improved muscle tone, a healthy weight, clear eyes, healthy skin and hair. People notice your increased vigor and enthusiasm helping your own sense of self-being.

Your health depends on many factors, some you can not completely control — but others, you can control. The risk factors associated with heredity, environment, sex and age can not be completely controlled. But they can often be minimized by changes in lifestyle, diet, exercise, and then combined with a program of regular health care.

Your lifestyle is the key to wellness. Today, most Americans die from heart disease, cancer, stroke, lung disease and accidents. Many deaths can be prevented by changes in lifestyle health habits. Yourself: Do I tobacco or a b u s e alcohol? Do I get enough exercise? Do I eat and maintain thy weight? under too stress? Your depends a lot Therefore, to a healthy e academi- cally, mentally, physically and spiri-

Former writer shares stories with The Pacifican

MORRIS BROWN
Pacifican Advisor

Pacifican staff members were treated to first-hand history and entertaining stories from a former writer during her visit to campus for Founders Day activities last week.

Marian Van Gilder Schroven, who graduated from the College of the Pacific in 1929 and wrote for the campus newspaper while a student here, shared stories about her years at Pacific and her days as a contributor to a four-page publication then known as the Pacific Weekly.

"In those days, I was truly a freelance writer because we didn't get paid a thing," Schroven joked as Editor-in-Chief Trent Allen demonstrated computerized production techniques—a far cry from the hot lead Linotype machines of her era. Schroven said she also worked on the campus yearbook and felt that was an important way to capture the memories of the school year.

Schroven, who double majored in English and theater arts, said she had originally wanted to go to Stanford University, but ended up at Pacific because Stanford didn't offer the courses she wanted for her program. After that first year, however, she decided that Pacific was the school for her and she has been a loyal supporter ever since. She earned a masters degree from the University of Southern California and briefly pursued a teaching career.

Over the years, Schroven has given numerous gifts to the University and established several endowments.

Editor-in-Chief Trent Allen meets with former Pacifican writer Marian Van Gilder Schroven.

"Founders Day" insert prepared by The Pacifican, Schroven shared tidbits of history about the people who helped to make the University what it is today.

"I can remember Tully Knoles (who served as president of the College of the Pacific from 1919 to 1946) riding around campus on his horse."

She said one of the things that continues to impress her about Pacific is how beautiful the campus has become over the years. "There were a bunch of open fields when I first came here and whenever there was a tree planting, that was a big deal."

Schroven, who resides in Oceanside near San Diego, has always been a big sports fan. She not only follows the news regarding teams at Pacific, but also is a San Diego Chargers season ticket holder. She said she learned sports from her father and from her late husband, Victor, a quarterback for the University of Alabama during the 1930s.

Latest albums lack variety, creativity

JULIE ANTON
Living Editor

A disappointing time was had by all as my roommates and I listened half-heartedly to the sounds of Jason & the Scorchers and their new CD entitled "Midnight Roads & Stages Seen."

Centered in Nashville, Tenn., Jason & the Scorchers have a wannabe country sound that tries desperately to simulate the twang of today's popular country songs. Their music contains too much electric guitar and drum beats to be labeled a true country band, but they do have a certain raw charm that comes through in their songs.

Many of Jason & the Scorchers' lyrics are creative with a down-home feel. "200 Proof Lovin'" and "Broken Whiskey Glass" are examples of their unpolished sound.

Even though Jason & the Scorchers probably won't be appearing on a major concert tour anytime soon, there is something about them that makes you want to get up and dance. Their CD was recorded live, with cheers from the crowd, which was fitting considering you're most likely going to find them playing in a local tavern. And a local tavern is probably where they will stay.

"Hang On To Nothing" is the title of The Pistoleros new album, and it lives up to its "Nothing" title. The Pistoleros have the most generic sound on the market. Not to say that their music is terrible—it's really not. But every song sounds alike.

After hearing the first song on the CD, I was hopeful that this band would prove to be one of merit. Their music is fine, just not anything truly special. And as my roommate pointed out, one song was enough—hearing more than that makes their CD a monotonous one.

The key to a good first album is variety, and lately it seems like new artists are having a problem in this area. The Pistoleros' lead singer Mark Zubia has a range of about eight notes in each of his songs. And anyone can tell you, music major or not, that you need more than one scale to make a song a good one.

Finally, one CD this week

Stress management: Just in time for final exams

GORDON ROSE
Pacifican Guest Writer

There are only three weeks left until final exams. Major papers and projects are due before that. You have some reading to catch up on, and your friends are begging you to go to San Francisco for the weekend. You have this uneasy feeling that is all-too-familiar: STRESS!

College students begin feeling the effects of stress about this time of year. They often have problems eating or sleeping. There is an increased use of alcohol or other drugs during this time, and a sense of "the blahs" sets in. They notice an inability to get organized and there are just too many things due all at once.

Negative, excessive stress may be a key element in half of all illnesses, ranging from the common cold to heart disease. It can also lead to thoughts of suicide and a sense of loss of control.

The American College Health Association is aware of the dangers of negative stress on college students, and has produced a brochure on ways to handle stress, both short-term and long-term. The brochure is available, along with other materials on the variety of problems faced by college students, at the Cowell Health Center.

For stress management right now, with all of the pressures of semester end upon you, the brochure lists 4 steps:

1) Relax where you are. Take time to just inhale deeply and relax, remembering that everything does not have to be completed by tomorrow.

2) Take a break from all of the pressures you are experiencing. Get some exercise or fresh air. Go somewhere private. Take time to scream and yell, or just cry, whichever seems to release the pressures of school.

3) Assess the situation. Is it really worth working yourself up so much? If the issue is important, confront it directly, talk it out with a friend, or write it in a letter you never need to send.

4) Prioritize your assignments. If a paper is due next week, and a test is scheduled in a week and a half, work on the paper first. Put the most important task at the top of your list. The others can go at the top tomorrow.

Remember, it will all be over in about a month. You'll be getting ready for a summer job, internship or maybe a trip. Take it easy on yourself, but keep in mind it will all be back again next fall.

Yoneda's delicious sushi is 'raw' talent

ERICA BIRLEW

Can you feel it? It's close to the end of the semester and no one wants to go to class, especially on a sunny day. Not to mention, after a long semester apart from mom's cooking, no one, and I mean no one, wants to eat another meal in the Dining Hall. In response to this campus-wide tension that is hovering in the air, your beloved and ever-faithful Epicurean Ambassador has a tantalizing dining option. Try Japanese food at Yoneda's in the Calaveras Square on the corners of March Lane and West Lane.

Don't deny the fact that the first thing you think of is sushi. You've probably heard people say "Let's get sushi" and you've wondered "Is sushi for me or is it bait for the fishes?" In response, I say yes, yes, yes! Sushi and other Yoneda's is located in Calaveras Square on the corner of March and West Lane.

Japanese entrees offered at Yoneda's are wonderful, moderately priced meals to be shared with a large group of friends or with visiting family.

At Yoneda's, my dining companion and I decided on a modest fare for our evening meal. We began with an order of California Rolls and salmon sushi. California rolls are cold sticky rice filled with various vegetables rolled in seaweed. I don't usually care for California rolls of any kind, but my dining companion loved these. So instead, I ordered an appetizer of the salmon sushi (two pieces). Salmon sushi is little cakes of cold sticky rice smeared a little green oriental radish (very tangy) topped with a piece of salmon. They were sweet simply delicious.

For dinner, I ordered salmon teriyaki steak.

Perhaps one of the worse things about living on campus is the free access to cable television. (boo hoo) My reason for this is because every now and then, there is that certain weekend where there is free HBO. During that weekend all normal scholastic activities that we might engage ourselves in are ripped in half and tossed into 'la basura,' that's Spanish for garbage can for those of you who took French in high school. To sum it up, let's just say that it was all about laying in bed, staring at the television, and chowing on fine pizzas. It was great to be able to not "have to always be doing something

"Hope Floats" is an endearing story of love, friendship

Twentieth Century Fox

Heartbroken and totally humiliated when her husband leaves her, Birdee (Sandra Bullock) picks up her young daughter and moves back in with her eccentric mother in her hometown of Faithville, Texas.

The one-time high school beauty queen's life is turned upside-down as she tries to deal with the emotional turmoil that results. Birdee's growing affection for her childhood friend Justin (Harry Connick, Jr.), who, she discovers, has carried a torch for her since high school, is another confusing and unwelcome complication.

Eventually Birdee discovers a few things she had almost given up on: love, acceptance, a life full of promise, and best of all...hope.

After rocketing to superstardom with her role in "Speed," Sandra Bullock solidified her standing as one of today's most popular and likable actresses with her performances in "While You Were Sleeping" and "The Net." Her film credits also include "A Time to Kill," "In Love and War," "Speed 2: Cruise Control" and "Demolition Man."

Two-time Grammy-winning singer Harry Connick, Jr. also enjoys a flourishing career in motion pictures, having had roles in the box shows promise. Semisonic is an up-and-coming group from Minneapolis, Minnesota, that has already made a song make it to the top of the charts. Entitled "Closing Time," it's by far the best song on the album.

Semisonic is a talented group of musicians who really know how to write a good song. Their lyrics are the best I've read all year. Lead singer Dan Wilson has a way with singing those beautiful poems set to music.

Their new album, entitled "Feeling Strangely Fine," isn't known for its ability to make listeners get up and move. With only one great song on the entire CD, Semisonic faces a serious problem. Many of their tunes end up sounding whiny - when they are supposed to sound thoughtful and sincere. Wilson does have a nice singing voice, unlike Zeb from The Pistoleros, but he comes across as wimpy.

Even though Semisonic has room for improvement, they certainly will be a favorite for 1998, and a band that won't easily be forgotten.

Semisonic releases new CD "Feeling Strangely Fine" and the hit song "Closing Time."

Weekly soap opera update

ALL MY CHILDREN: Tad rescued Edmund and Dimitri. Mateo had a horrifying vision of Brooke. Mike Roy came face-to-face with Erica who fainted when she realized he was alive. Later, he berated her for some of her romantic choices following his "death." Stuart told Marian they can't interfere in Liza and Adam's lives. Wait To See: Axel makes an admission about Erica.

ANOTHER WORLD:

Cass wondered about Lila's unusually close relationship with her doctor. Rachel overheard Amanda tell Matt about Carl's reorganization of Cory Enterprises. Carl accused Rachel of conspiring with Amanda and Matt against him. Sofia was unsure about living on the farm Nick inherited from Michael. Wait To See: Cameron makes a move that could jeopardize someone's life.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES: Celeste was unable to answer Hope's questions about her past. Austin was upset about the apparent growing closeness of Carrie and Mike. Susan escaped and learned from Violet about Edmund and Kristen going to Bermuda for their honeymoon. Susan then flew to Bermuda and while holding a gun on Kristen, got baby Elvis back from her. Edmund turned up to see Kristen dressed as Susan and Susan dressed as Kristen. Wait To See: Will it really be the end for Kristen?

GENERAL HOSPITAL: To protect the secret of Nikolas' parentage, Stefan realized he had to downplay his love for Laura. Meanwhile, Lucky assured Helena of his loyalty to her without completely going against Luke. Liz was startled to hear Mr. Murty use a phrase her rapist used. Jason rejected Carly's advances, saying he just wants them to be friends. Jax confronted John and Jerry about the shooting.

Wait To

called Sam for help when Todd went into one of his jealous tirades. Wait To See: Cassie makes a decision about Dorian's life support.

PORT CHARLES: Eve escaped being arrested for drug possession. The regeneration drug worked and Frank began to recover. Later, Lark overheard Bennett taking credit for Frank's discovery and told Frank about seeing Bennett inject him. Lucy was intrigued by Serena's suggestion of launching a new "Serena Line," but Scott was less than pleased to have his daughter in the spotlight. Frank broke into the lab to learn why he's exhibiting strange behavior, and learned he is Subject X. Wait To See: Kevin's book begins to come to life.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS: After learning Sharon planned to go away for a while, Nick wondered why she would take both Noah and Cassie, since Cassie belongs to Grace. Chris told Nina she's torn between her feelings for both Paul and Danny. Michael told Phyllis he's afraid Chris will never help him regain his license to practice law. Miguel chatted with Veronica, unaware he'd once known her as Sarah. Victor insisted on marrying the dying Nikki. Later, Diane learned Nikki may recover. Victoria and Neil shared sad stories about their respective marriages. Wait To See: Diane demands a decision Victor may not be able to make.

See: Helena sends Lucky into hot water.

GUIDING LIGHT: In Springfield, the clone reacted with fear to Josh's belief that the original Reva is still alive. On the island, Sean was torn about helping Reva return to her family. Phillip called the police after learning of Beth and Harley's plan to trap Carl, but someone got to Carl before the police arrived. Later, Phillip realized how Alan's betrayal changed his life. To Josh's dismay, Marah and the clone bonded. Wait To See: Sean makes a decision about Reva.

ONE LIFE TO LIVE: Near death after being shot at the bodega, Dorian had an out-of-body experience where she came face-to-face with Carlo Hesser. Realizing she's in Hell with Hesser, Dorian was wracked with images of Viki, and after agreeing to make friends with Viki, found herself aboard the Titanic. Tea straight from the bowl.

Overall, the dinner was wonderful and the service was fabulous. If the meals we ordered don't suit you, there is a wide selection of other entrees you could order that will no doubt send your taste buds whirling. So, be adventurous when you order. or going somewhere" as many of you probably can relate.

Last week, if you recall (how could you have missed it?), there was an overwhelmingly obscene amount of loud thunder and lightning taking place here in the lovely city of Stockton. It just so happens that I was out at the townhouses visiting some friends when this El Nino show started. Let me just tell you that the thunder was so strong the upper windows were rattling. But for the first time ever, I saw a complete rainbow that seemed to touch the ground. What a sight.

One of the reasons that I like Pacific so much isn't only because of the curriculum or the Greek system, but because of the little things. For instance, there is one man who truly makes a difference. It's the leafblower. When it's the leafblower, wouldn't we all be without him? Probably walking around with leaves up to our lower lip. I mean, the man deserves credit. If you see him, be sure to bust out "what's up" or even just "nod" will do.

Tigers get stung out of playoffs

STEVE CABRAL
Pacifica Staff Writer

The UOP men's lacrosse team went up to Sacramento to play in their first-ever post-season game. They matched up against the top-seeded CSUS Hornets who had beaten Pacific 17-4 during the regular season and the odds to win were not in the Tigers' favor.

Dan Hazlett, who scored all four goals in their regular season meeting, missed the game and captain Jeff Stiff was out with an injury suffered in the final regular season game.

The Tigers played a tough game and after the first quarter, things looked good as Pacific only trailed a much better team by the score of 1-0.

The Tigers had nothing to lose going into the game and were not even predicted to qualify for playoffs this year but it looked like an upset was possible. The Tigers had a chance to play in the Final Four tournament which they were hosting this year if they could put a few goals on the board and get through the swarming defense of Sacramento. The Hornets would not allow that and shut the Tiger offense down, although it had been on a hot streak going into the playoffs scoring 31 goals in the last two games. Pacific could not even manage to get one goal after the first half and trailed 6-0 at halftime.

The three starting defensemen and goalie for Sacramento were nominated as All-Stars this year and were able to run the tempo of the game and hold the Tigers off while the Hornets' offense started out shaky. Maryland native and four-time All-Star Sheldon Blisset got things going for Sacramento State on offense and was able to break the ice and put the game out of reach in the second half.

Pacific was able to get two second half goals by senior All-Star Wayne Broberg but it was too little too late as the Tigers lost 12-2. The defensive unit consisting of Ted Brown, Justin Foster, Fred Fune, Jose Villareal and Tony "Rhino" Phillips played an excellent game against the top offense in Division 2. Tiger goalie Joel Colf once again came up with some amazing saves and showed why he was selected to the All-Star team.

Name	Yr.	Pos.
Wayne Broberg	Sr.	attack
Jeff Stiff	Sr.	defense
James Ward	Sr.	middie
Steve Cabral	Jr.	attack
Joel Colf	Fr.	goalie

Things look good for next year as the Tigers will have a strong returning core, but will lose five seniors. Senior Wayne Broberg finished the year by breaking the scoring record for most goals in a season (26), and Phillips went out with a bang in his final game leaving his mark on a few of the Sacramento State players.

Intramural Update

With the rath of El Nino behind us, Intramural Softball has reached full swing. The past few weeks have been full of dynamic plays and mammoth home runs. The season has been progressing smoothly and with each game the playoff picture is becoming more clear. The Men's A division is extremely competitive as Pike and Archania sit at the top of the leaderboard. In Men's B action the sled dogs have dominated the American League while the teams still have the possibility of seeing time in the playoffs. In the Women's league there has been strong competition between the three teams of Different Sticks, Scruples, and Soccer Chicks. All three have crucial games coming up the week of April 20th.

Intramural Golf will take to the course on April 24 at Swenson Golf Facility.

CA Cheesewackers have made a strong showing in the National League. A post-season showdown seems to be establishing itself in the CO-REC A division as the two Physical Therapy teams have been unstoppable. The CO-REC B division is still up for grabs. All five

Ole for tennis! A smash hit

SOTERA BARKER
Pacifcan Staff Writer

Senior Ole Olson is the number-one player on the men's tennis team at UOP and will be graduating in May with a master's degree in Business Administration.

On Saturday April 18, he was honored by his coach and teammates during the team's match against UC Santa Cruz. "Normally seniors are honored on the last match but Saturday was a better time for everyone," said Baumann. Coach Baumann said that it has been difficult not being able to play at UOP's own tennis courts because construction is due to start this month. The team currently play their matches at the Marina Tennis and Swim Club located on Ben Holt Drive and it is quite far for the college community to attend.

"Once the new facilities are completed, it will make it much easier for the team to play," said Baumann. "And hopefully, the campus community will be able to attend and support all of the matches."

Warm weather on Saturday brought an enthusiastic and supportive crowd to honor Olson and watch the matches.

"He's good," said a Santa Cruz Slugs fan as he watched Olson's play his singles match.

A candid interview with Ole Olson:

Q: Now that you are graduating, what are your goals for the future?

A: I would like to work to help people with their financial needs; work in international trade as I do now. I would like to be self-employed in the near future.

Q: How did you first decide to come to UOP?

A: After high school, I went into the military. Then I went to business school for one year in Norway. I had friends who knew about UOP and so when the coach offered me a scholarship I couldn't resist, I decided to come to UOP.

Q: What was your first impression of California and UOP?

Ole Olson

A: I came here on August 17, 1994, and I remember it was so hot I couldn't sleep all night. The temperature must have been 110 degrees. I was surprised how bold this area was; I expected the university to be near the ocean. I came over here and saw only agriculture. It was just amazing.

Q: When you first arrived in California, did you come directly to UOP?

A: Kevin Sverduk, Bill Maze, the men's coach at the time, and Joe Gonzales, one of the guys from the team picked me up from the airport. When we arrived here, I slept on the couch at Joe's house. I remember I woke up the next day and said to myself, 'OK, I am in America now' and I fell right into student life.

Q: How do you find the classes here at UOP?

A: The classes are demanding because they are in a foreign language to me but I think the workload is very manageable.

Q: How do you feel about leaving UOP?

A: Right now I am excited about moving on in life but, there's a big part of me that's going to miss the campus atmosphere. I have had a great time being part of the tennis team.

Q: What about your family?

A: My father, my mother and my brother live in Bergen, Norway, my hometown. My sister lives in Austria right now but she travels all over Europe.

Q: Is your family coming to the graduation ceremonies?

A: Only my father. My brother is 15 years old and has to go to school. He's in the national junior tennis team and is aiming for the 2004 Olympics.

Q: Are you planning to continue to play tennis?

A: Right now I need to take some time off to get my body healed again. My whole body aches. I've had a knee injury, a bad shin, a very bad back and a shoulder operation.

Q: Any closing comments?

A: After I've been here four years now all things must come to an end. It's nice in a way because you can look back with good memories and look forward to new and different things. I've had a fantastic time here at the university.

Heartbreak city in Davis

UC Davis comes back to beat UOP 7-5

THE PACIFICAN

UOP's women had to like their chances.

Up 3-1, behind two early Cari Bertrand goals, the Tigers had a great chance to win last Saturday at Davis. The UC Davis Aggies came from behind to win, however, 7-5.

Bertrand's goals came in the first three minutes of the game and had given Pacific a rare first quarter lead. But the large Picnic Day crowd at Hickey Pool helped negate that lead as UC Davis (16-11) tied it up before halftime. Holly Kincaid and Jamie Koett's goals knotted the score at 3-3 after Molly Smith had given Pacific a 3-1 lead. Alisa Comfort then gave the Aggies their first lead when she scored from four meters. Smith's 4-meter penalty shot tied the game at 4-4 before the half.

Kincaid again put UCD up 5-4 with a goal in the third period but Smith scored her third goal of the game to tie the contest with 6:01 remaining.

The Aggies went ahead for good on Christa Hattich's goal with 4:31 left and added another when Ligaya Smith scored with 51 seconds to play to push the lead to 7-3. Kenna Sasser had seven saves in goal for the Tigers and UCD's Molly Morris had four.

Pacific (2-14) will head into this weekend's National Qualification Tournament at Stanford on Friday.

Division I baseball for four years and one of those performances he said was also by a Pacific pitcher, last year's ace Ryan Reichert (currently playing professionally).

Ryan Stowasser's third home run of the year was a two-run shot and Joey Camarata's run-scoring single helped Moore from on offense standpoint. Mario Vela had an RBI double and Jason Forhauer drove in a run while going 2-for-3 with two singles.

While Saturday was memorable, Friday's game was one to forget. The Tigers making their first appearance on TV this season (Stockton's Media One), tied up a 5-4 game in the ninth, when Ryan Annett scored on a passed ball, only to lose it in the tenth. Kyle May went nine innings for UOP but his four earned runs led his team in.

Scott Sheldon's sacrifice fly to right field brought home Brian Cassenego, which represented the Mustangs' winning run. The Tigers couldn't get anything going in the bottom of the tenth inning.

Sunday's game was even less memorable for the Tigers as Cal Poly's big seventh inning helped them cruise to a 10-3 victory.

The Mustangs stamped the Tigers for six runs in the top of the seventh including two on two Tiger errors, a misplay by third baseman Camarata and an overthrow by catcher Tye Hanseen.

Starter Travis Fleming gave up six earned runs in six innings and the Tigers' used four pitchers in that horrendous seventh inning.

Poly's Steve Wood ate up UOP pitching to go three-for-five with three RBI, and on the mound Mike Zirelli got the complete-game win.

Camarata's solo homer to left field and Robbie Wood's 2-for-4 single, double and two RBI showing were Pacific's only positive notes.

"I just think we need to get back on track," said Wood after Sunday's loss. "The whole year the pitching staff's done pretty well. Hopefully, they can keep it up and the position players can step up and we'll start winning some games."

Looking ahead, the Tigers face valley rivals Sac State next weekend in a three-game series. Friday the Tigers (8-12 Big West) will face the Hornets at Billy Hebert Field at 7 p.m. and travel to play the Hornets at CSUS on Saturday at 2 p.m. The teams come back to Stockton on Sunday to play the series finale at 1 p.m. at Hebert Field.

Sunday's games began well, taking the first game 1-0 from Cal Poly SLO. The high point of the game was senior Debbie Wilson's RBI-single in the bottom of the third to give the Tigers the only run they would need to grab the victory. McArthur once again led the team from the mound, striking out six and yielding just one walk to improve to 10-8 in 1998.

Pacific was unable to carry their momentum into the night game, falling 4-1.

Pitcher Leslie Rodgers felt most of the pressure of the loss, allowing four runs, three earned, and seven hits in six innings.

The Tigers have won 10 of their last 13 games and travel to Cal State Northridge and UC Santa Barbara next weekend.

awful (I could barely hear the announcers but I could hear the guys in the dugout scratching themselves) and their camera angles were poor (rarely showed the delivery of a pitch, instead just focusing on the batter as the pitch arrived) but it's Media One and not ESPN. Halfway through the game I realized, hey this is the future of baseball! People could send their video cameras to games and stay home and watch.

Can't buy me shade

Last Sunday was a beautiful day to be out at the ballpark, as I was at Billy Hebert Field for the 10-3 spanking our Bengals received from Cal Poly SLO. It was 80-plus degrees with nice breezes and little or no cloud cover. But shade is one thing you can't find at Billy Hebert Field. I went cowering into the press box to escape the harmful UV rays but others were not as lucky.

On-campus baseball facility

I wish we could get an on-campus baseball field so we wouldn't have to watch games at Billy Hebert Field, home of the Stockton Ports. I know it's only like a mile and a half from campus but I guarantee attendance would be better if we had something on-campus. Let's get the guy that built the Arizona Diamondbacks' stadium, Bank One Ballpark (or The 'BOB' as it is also known) to build UOP an on-campus facility. We could get a retractable roof and a pool in center field and we could call it UOP Got Bank Ballpark.

Pickoff this!

Kyle May, UOP right hander, has a sweet pickoff move. He nailed Cal Poly's Matt Elam in the first inning of Friday's game. The next time Elam got on, his lead was a lot smaller.

Uniform grades

C- for the UOP baseball uniforms. They are simple, black and white with Tigers across the front. But there is not one speck of orange in their uni. It goes back to my theory about orange not being cool. Am I the only UOP student that thinks the color orange is money?

B+ for the softball team and their nice use of orange. The black jerseys are sweet.

Settle down, Slugger

It was women's lacrosse not baseball, but someone forgot to tell UOP's Tina Gagne that. Late in the Tigers' 9-8 win, she was heading for the St. Mary's goal when she had the ball smacked out of her lacrosse stick by a St. Mary's defender. Gagne fumed and pulled back her stick like she was about to take the poor defender's head off. Luckily, she stopped herself and didn't swing. Nice job, Slugger!

Gut check time

Gut check for UOP baseball: Can they take a sweep from Sac State. Are they up for the challenge?

Gut check for women's water polo: Can they put their backs to the wall and come out and rip some suits in this weekend's NCAA qualifying tournament at Stanford?

Gut check for sports groupies: You know who you are! How much status do you really think you have messing around with athletes at UOP? Nobody cares.

Gut/ego check for athletes with big egos: Are you really all that? Do you walk around campus like you are the shiz-nitty-nit? Get over yourselves! Play hard and represent the orange and black.

Hard work equals wins

When I asked Darin Moore what he attributed his complete-game shutout to, he said, "Hard work." Now, that's what I'm talkin' 'bout!

C's hero of the week

Darin Moore whiffed 13 fools in Saturday's 6-0 win over Cal Poly so I've gotta give him the hard-earned respect. He played like a man!

Darin Moore

This is the second consecutive week that Moore earned Big West Pitcher of the Week honors. Last week he pitched a complete-game shutout in a 6-0 UOP win over Cal Poly. He struck out 13 Mustang batters in the game. Moore is currently 7-2 on the season with a 2.85 ERA.

Brandee McArthur

McArthur was also named Big West Pitcher of the Week for the second consecutive week for her three victories last week. The highlight was a 12-inning complete-game shutout in which she fanned 11 Mustangs in a 2-0 win over Cal Poly. McArthur is 10-8 on the season and has 101 strikeouts.

Molly Smith

Named to the Mountain Pacific Sports Federation All-Federation Second Team. She led the team in goals with 47 and had three last Saturday in a 7-5 loss at UC Davis.

Baseball

Mustangs corral Tigers for two of three

C. COLTON
Sports Editor

You might call it a loss sandwich. Pacific had two bad losses with a great win in the middle last weekend against Cal Poly.

UOP (21-15) beat Cal Poly last Saturday 6-0 powered by a fantastic pitching outing from Darin Moore. But the Mustangs (16-31) from San Luis Obispo outlasted the Tigers 6-5 in 10 innings last Friday and then made them pay 10-3 on Sunday, the day after Moore's brilliance.

Scorching might begin to describe Moore's pitching as of late. The 5-foot-11 sophomore from Lodi has won three of his last four decisions including one against then-ranked No. 25 Long Beach State.

Moore (7-2) torched the Mustangs for 13 strikeouts in a complete game. He gave up nine hits but not a single run as Pacific won it going away 6-0.

Softball

McArthur shines in two weekend victories

Brandee McArthur picked up two wins last weekend against UCSB and Cal Poly.

Tiger Tye Hanseen (7) slides in safe at the plate, avoiding Scott Sheldon's dropped ball.

"Just going out there going one pitch at a time," said Moore of his masterful performance. "I'm not looking towards the next batter."

Moore's team-low 2.85 ERA speaks for itself and it was his fifth complete game of the season.

Cal Poly head coach Ritch Price was quite impressed with Moore's showing.

"Darin Moore was absolutely fabulous," said Price. "I went up and told him one of the four finest that's been pitched against the last four years."

Pacific (19-15, 12-6 Big West) split a doubleheader against UC Santa Barbara and took one of two from Cal Poly last weekend. The Tigers were down 3-0 against UCSB in the first game until the bottom of the sixth inning when they scored a pair of runs to take the lead. Brandee McArthur led the team from the pitcher's mound, pitching a complete game three-hitter, allowing just one run. The Gauchos fell 2-1.

The Tigers were able to carry their momentum into the nightcap. The win was once again the carrying of the day behind their victory. Leslie Riedinger pitched a complete game shutout to bring on a Pacific victory 10-0. Katie Ziegler's error in the bottom of the fourth keyed the Tiger's third run in the inning.
